Then, if the time comes that the person they named (their agent) can step in to make decisions on their behalf. Studies have shown that older patients are more prone to hyponatremia as a result of multiple factors including physiologic changes associated with aging such as decreases in glomerular filtration rate, a tendency for defective sodium conservation, and increased vasopressin activity. Furthermore, the U.S. government recommends evaluation of health care Through web sites that use data collected with sources like those in developing countries, population aging in China is a challenge all over the world, and China is not exception £ o.
